

OUR SERVANTS IN CONGRESS.

Congress was in a humor during its last session to aid by appropriations the erection of public buildings. It assisted thirty-three cities of the Union from the Treasury, aiding in the work to the extent of $6,732,500. Over $3,000,000 more went to complete buildings already under way. While the pie is being served round, Nevada, as usual, is left out in the cold, and will not get a dollar. In this connection it may not be impertinent to inquire what Senators Jones and Fair and Representative Cassidy were doing in Washington all Summer? We would like to see somebody sent to Washington who would turn aside from the gastronomical and social whirl of g y life at the Capital, long enough to do something for his sagebrush constituents. Ever since Nevada became a State about all the news from the front has been that Senator so-and-so gave a dinner to some other Senators at which a number of distinguished guests sat down and had a big feed and swill, or that Congressman so-and-so created a sensation by declining a foreign mission or got a speech printed in the Congressional Globe which he never delivered, or seconded a motion relative to the appropriation of some money for the relief of a man in Vermont; but all this while no substantial work has been done for Nevada improvements except the securing of the Carson Mint, which is liable to be moved over into some of the Middle States unless our representatives keep a sharp eye upon it.

The friends of Adams say that the sharp practice resorted to in packing the delegates in Nye and Lander counties "was against the advice of Adams." If this is so it wouldn't be a bad idea for Adams to write a letter—dated back, say about the 15th of the month—urging the Committee to give all hands a fair show. The Committee could say that the letter did not reach them in time, and by a little masquerading on the part of the Committee, coupled with a show of injured innocence on the part of Adams, everything could be made to look right, and Adams could take in another trick. Adams feels so bad about it that he would willingly do anything to set the matter right—except allow the delegates to be selected by the people on the square.

Last week at Rock Creek, Wyoming, a man was lynched by being hung up on the end of a baggage car by men in disguise. Those who organized the masquerade neglected to send invitations to neighboring bergs, which violation of the amenities of the country has caused considerable feeling in the towns of Cheyenne and Laramie. The citizens of the latter place threaten to hang their Postmaster or Justice of the Peace and not send the Rock Creekers word until a week after the hilarity is over.

The occasion of the public demonstration at Chicago for the widow of John Brown and by which means it was expected to raise sufficient funds to enable her to build a house, was a failure. About all that Mrs. Brown received was about a hundredweight of letters from the leading politicians of the Union announcing their sympathy with the movement. None of these letters contained checks, although they came from men who, but for John Brown, might never have attained power or prominence.

The Adams tactics are still being successfully pursued in Storey and the result of one of his "still hunis" is that the Central Committee have decided not to give the minority a fair chance at the primaries. This is giving Jewett a dose of his own medicine.

Stanford, Crocker and Huntington own $100,000,000 each, and yet the misguided people of California expect to elect an anti-monopoly ticket this Fall. You can't do it.

The APPEAL is authorized to state that the Hon. William Woodburn is a candidate for Governor, and will submit his name to the Republican State Convention.

Mr. Harlow and the State Printing.

Since Mr. J. C. Harlow, the publisher of the APPEAL, entered the lists for the office of State Printer, the APPEAL for obvious reasons has refrained from making any endorsement of him, as a candidate. On Sunday a paper in this city published by ex-State Printer Robinson insinuated that if Mr. Harlow was elected one half the proceeds of the office would go to S. P. Davis, the editor of the APPEAL. The office of State Printer is now a salaried one and the pay is $2,000 a year. The charge that Mr. Harlow will pay half of his salary or any portion of it to the editor of the APPEAL is a silly falsehood.

Some days before Leland Stanford's reply to Pixley on the railroad question the APPEAL anticipated his argument in a facetious way, and now when Stanford's letter comes out the two are almost identical, except that Stanford's is longer. The arguments used by Steve Gage and to which Stanford signed his name is an insult crammed down the public throat. It is like causing a man to deliver his money at the muzzle of a revolver and then telling him that you are merely collecting funds to start a church with.

The will of Delos Lake sets forth that the deceased held stocks at the time of his death valued at $7,500. This accounts for the decline. Lake must have held a controlling interest in the Comstock.
